VOTE FRAUDS CENTER IN SOCIALIST SECTOR

State Investigator Finds Fourth Assembly Full of Fake Registries.

MOVE FOR GRAND JURY

Embree to Turn to Court Over Banton's Refusal to Take Action.

FRAUDS NOT WHOLESOME

Gilbert Says Technical Offenses Predominate Outside of East Side.

William Dean Embree, special deputy attorney-general, will ask Judge Crane in General Sessions to-day that registration frauds and crimes against the ballot be placed before the Grand Jury.

This action is being taken by the State investigators because of District Attorney Banton's refusal to vary his procedure of taking such cases to the Magistrates' courts. The next step of the State inquiry will be to try to learn to what extent the Police Department has been cooperating with the Board of Elections in trying to impede the investigation. The State officials have been unable to obtain many registration records and they want to find what has become of them.

The investigation has shown that there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of illegal registrations in the Twelfth Congressional district alone. The center of the activity seems to be the Fourth Assembly district. Abraham S. Gilbert, deputy attorney-general, said he had no intention of making wholesale arrests. His purpose has been and is now to prevent violations of the election and penal laws rather than to prosecute for crime committed.

"If I were disposed to prosecute every case which has come under my observation I could keep the courts of this county busy indefinitely. Many boards of election inspectors are guilty of crime because they have omitted to perform duties imposed upon them. The law does not recognize an excuse that the board was ignorant of the law or that the practice complained of has continued for some years."

"I am always inclined to assume honesty rather than dishonesty. In the cases to which I refer I shall continue to assume mistakes until I am satisfied to the contrary; but when I do reach the conclusion that a violation already committed was not because of ignorance but willful I shall act accordingly."

"But I do find an affirmatively bad condition in the Fourth Assembly district and in other parts of the Twelfth Congressional district of New York county, where the Socialist party can probably elect a member of Assembly and a Representative in Congress if they get a square deal. I mean to see that they get it in spite of my personal very positive opposition to all that party stands for."

"I have not alone turned up in that section the rather clever but unlawful scheme of 'assisting' voters to vote right, but I have turned up so much deliberate false registration that I have or ethical aspects of the situation. Republican managers are compelled to admit, of course, that Mr. Smith is an unusually strong opponent. Tammany men and Democrats in other boroughs hold him in genuine affection because he is one of their kind.

CITY VOTE TO DECIDE RACE IN MILLER-SMITH TOSSUP

Many parochial reasons are urged to support individual opinion that Boss Murphy of Tammany is not displaying any unusual amount of enthusiasm for the man who forced the Tammany leader to nominate him for Governor. Such views lack substance. The fact is that Murphy has complied with every request and condition set up by Mr. Smith. The latter, like Gov. Miller, is "running his own campaign," and the New York Democratic organizations are giving him the fullest measure of support, as is also true in the case of Gov. Miller and his party.

Tammany Vote Solid.

Satisfied, with the exception of one or two "weak spots" up the State, Republican plans contemplate an assault on some of the least substantial links in the Democratic chain of defense in the city. Apostasy of the Tammany organization, however, is not one of them and the more rational Republican leaders are not hesitating to assert that Mr. Smith will receive every vote that the Tammany organization can deliver to him.

It is a matter of opinion, of course, whether the Democratic candidate is as strong in New York city as he was two years ago. The Socialist and sporting element who are rarely influenced by sentimental considerations do not think he is; but they still believe that he is strong enough to hold at least 250,000 of the 317,000 plurality he received over Mr. Miller in the five boroughs of the city. They think this will win.

Many reasons are naturally advanced to explain the alleged depreciation of Mr. Smith's value as a vote getter in the city districts. The apathetic support given him by the agencies which usually reflect the wishes of Mr. Hearst is one of them. The best that is said of the Hearst support by Tammany leaders is that elements which respond to the influence of Mr. Hearst are not openly attacking the Democratic candidate. Encouragement to the supporters of Surrogate Cohan in his personal feud with Tammany Boss Murphy and to Cassidy, the Socialist candidate for Governor, are considered by Tammany men to be distinctly unfriendly gestures.

District and election precinct leaders in Manhattan, Brooklyn, The Bronx and Queens, while asserting confidence that "Al Smith will get all the votes that are coming to him" are none the less skeptical as to the extent of his present drawing power as compared with his attractiveness two years ago. In Brooklyn, The Bronx and Queens Democratic leaders are by no means certain as to the extent and effect of the probable distribution of independent Republican and Democratic and Socialist votes.

The Independent Voters.

Two years ago Mr. Smith received a very substantial percentage of votes coming within this classification, which was conclusively established by the fact that whereas President Harding had 410,000 plurality in the five boroughs of the city, Mr. Smith was awarded 317,000 plurality in the same districts. The independent vote has always been an uncertain quantity, difficult to diagnose and successfully prognosticate. The independent vote of New York has never been successfully controlled by either party, and its decisions are usually dictated by individual opinion. If voters of this class are convinced that Mr. Miller's record is better than Mr. Smith's he will unquestionably receive a great many thousands of independent votes which supported the Democratic candidate two years ago.

When Mr. Smith was nominated at Syracuse a month ago the Socialist leaders of the city regarded him with favor and heralded the radical platform adopted by the convention which nominated him as entirely to their liking. The Socialist leaders have since revised their opinion of the Democratic candidate. They do not hesitate to denounce him as being "only a little less" conservative than Gov. Miller. Socialists declare that many thousands of voters usually classified as Republican or Democratic are manifesting a surprising amount of sympathy for the Socialist program. They attempt to explain it by declaring that these voters are disgusted with both the two major parties, and see little actual difference between Gov. Miller and Mr. Smith. The Socialists therefore feel justified in declaring that their vote will exceed the 145,000 polled by them two years ago. They further contend that a large percentage of it will be in the nature of a "protest vote" against both parties. Democratic as well as Republican reports confirm to some extent the Socialist claim, particularly as they relate to The Bronx, a handful of districts on the East Side of Manhattan and a few in Brooklyn, where the foreign population is considerable.

There appears to be little ground for the pessimistic views of some of the Republican local leaders who, for reasons largely personal, are disgruntled over Gov. Miller's refusal to permit them to use the State government to serve their own ends. Republicans therefore have few factional troubles approaching either in extent or potentialities those on the Democratic side of the ledger.

Past suspicions as to the motives of the Republican local machine do not appear to exist to-day. The Manhattan, Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens leaders, who in the past have not been above trading with the opposition, are giving Gov. Miller and the other State, Senatorial and Congressional candidates valuable support. Wherefore there appears to be more confidence that Gov. Miller is making a successful appeal to independent voters who are normally Republican than is usually the case.

No better illustration of the confusion and uncertainties that perplex the expert mind can be obtained anywhere than around the hotels and Broadway district and some of the more popular lunching places down town. The most definite impression that an inquisitive reporter brings away from such places is that the statisticians, dopesters and betting men regard the contest between Gov. Miller and Mr. Smith as "too close for comfort or confidence."

The same experts agree that the issue will be decided by the voters in the sixty-two Assembly districts of the five boroughs of the city and will turn almost solely on the extent of Democratic defection from Mr. Smith as compared with two years ago. Most of the Democratic experts concede that Mr. Miller is stronger in Brooklyn and in the uptown districts of Manhattan, as also in Queens, than he was two years ago, but they assert that, measured by votes, it will not exceed 20,000 in volume. Republican experts are quite sure that Mr. Smith is "100,000 votes weaker" than he was at that time.

The present State campaign is considered one of the best betting propositions in many years. It is professionally appraised as being actually "an even money tossup." One of the most significant features of this phase of the situation is that while betting commissioners say they have a large amount of money to bet on Mr. Smith they principally insist on having odds that do not appear to be logical. At the Hotel Astor Saturday night professional bettors said they had large sums to bet at the odds of $1 against $2 that Mr. Smith will carry the State by a minimum of 100,000; $1 against $3 that he would carry it by 150,000 and $1 against $4 that his plurality over Mr. Miller would be 200,000.

Inquiry failed to disclose any bets on an even money basis that Mr. Smith would in fact beat Mr. Miller at all. Vague reports of the sportively inclined but shadowy Smith supporters up the State offering to bet large sums on an even money basis have turned out to be incorrect. Advances from Buffalo, Albany, Troy, Syracuse, Rochester and Binghamton are in effect that there has been very little betting on the campaign to date and that most of it has favored Mr. Miller.

5,000 SEEK TICKETS FOR MILLER MEETING

Thousands of Women to March—Mills to Preside.

More than 5,000 applications for tickets have been received at Republican headquarters in Thirty-ninth street for Gov. Miller's last campaign rally in Manhattan Friday evening in Durland's Riding Academy.

Thousands of women will march through nearby streets. After parading in the vicinity of the academy the women will mass in front of the building. Representative Ogden L. Mills will preside. Harold Riegelman, Republican nominee in the Fifteenth Senate district, will be a leader of the torchlight parade.

500 IN MARQUETTE CLUB HEAR CALDER AND MILLS

Both Defend Policies of Harding Administration.

Senator William M. Calder and Representative Ogden L. Mills spoke last night at a dinner of 500 Marquette Club members in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza.

Both defended the Harding Administration. Senator Calder exhibited a German made glove, which he said he purchased at retail for $175, after it brought 75 cents wholesale. He declared the raising of the tariff on gloves from $2 to $4 a dozen need have little effect on the consumer and was a real benefit to manufacturers and workmen alike.

Mr. Mills, running for reelection in the Nineteenth district, praised the Harding policy of farm relief. "The farmers were facing ruin on account of poor crops in 1921," said the Representative. "The relief was brought about by the appropriation of $1,000,000,000 for farm credits. This aided the prosperity of the nation. Financial and industrial success depend upon the farmers. The present Administration stands back of them in any emergency."

The AMPICO

carries the soul of 100 artists within its magnificent case

It re-enacts any playing that has been done for it. It does not copy. It does not imitate. It does not produce music very close to something. It RE-ENACTS THE ACTUAL PLAYING.

The range of music that comes with the AMPICO includes classical compositions of the most difficult nature, popular classics, operatic selections, songs, hymns, dances and accompaniments—all available for use and enjoyment in the home.

The following may give you a more intimate idea of the AMPICO.

PAUL VAN KATWIJK, pianist and composer, one of the leading musicians of the Southwest, recently gave an interview to the Dallas Times Herald which described in most interesting fashion his experience in recording for the Ampico. It is in refreshing contrast to the lugubrious reports of artists who have recorded for competing instruments and have talked only of the horror of such an ordeal and of the vast amount of labor required to make their rolls fit for publication.

"There is nothing at all terrifying or difficult in recording for the Ampico," says Mr. Van Katwijk, in speaking of his first visit to the New York laboratory.

"Emerging from an elevator, one passes through an artistically decorated hallway into a large, cozy music room containing two grand pianos. One of these is a regular Ampico, on which recordings can be heard as soon as they are completed. The other is, to all appearances, an ordinary ebony concert grand, but it is connected by almost invisible electric wires with the recording machine, which is in another room. On the wall near it are some mysterious letters and lights through which necessary signals can be transferred."

When asked if there was any uncanny feeling experienced by the pianist about to record his work, Mr. Van Katwijk replied, "No, not at all. The pianist sits down at the concert grand piano, exercises his hands on the keyboard as much as he wishes, and presently, feeling completely at ease, he begins to play just as though he was actually performing in concert. Sometimes a pianist is seized with the unreasoning fear which is known to the phonograph artists as 'horn-fever.' He becomes nervous because of the feeling that every note that he plays will be perpetuated.

"In such cases the pianist is told to play through the composition merely for practice and to get the nervousness out of his system. Without his knowing it, however, the recording machine is immediately turned on, and to his surprise he finds a record made of the playing which he thought was merely removing his self-consciousness. Often these involuntary recordings turn out better than the carefully prepared performances which may have evidences of self-consciousness and artificiality."

"The recording pianist is merely urged to play freely and sincerely, not worrying over technical slips and making his phrasing and general dynamics consistently clear. Any false notes that he may strike can easily be eliminated later, and it is possible for him also to indicate and achieve here and there somewhat stronger effects than his actual playing had produced at the moment. In other words, in the perfected recording one gets the ideal interpretation of a composition by the pianist. It is literally his playing at its very best."

"It is only after the artist has fully approved of his recording and placed his signature upon it that the master roll is issued, from which all the other rolls are cut. The miracle of the Ampico lies not only in the preparation of the recording, but in the wonderfully delicate mechanism which brings out all these details of expression which have hitherto been lost."
